

Four Reasons to Partner with AYUSA

#1 - RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

Development & operation of faculty-led international study programs.

When resources are in short supply, schools often enlist faculty members to develop their own international study programs. Even if your faculty members have traveled extensively or led groups before, this is not the best use of their time and skills. AYUSA Study Abroad (ASA) is a division of Intrax Cultural Exchange. Intrax has developed faculty-led international study programs for over 25 years. We understand how to work with faculty to develop unique programs which reflect their individual styles while meeting the time constraints and financial needs of students. Our seasoned staff will produce a program to any destination outside North America based on the faculty leader's curriculum and goals. Faculty members will enjoy more time to increase overall participation in study abroad.

#2 - RISK MANAGEMENT

Travel insurance provided for all participants.

All participants (including faculty leaders) are covered by a comprehensive accident and sickness insurance policy underwritten by the HM Life Insurance Company. A 24-hour help center is always available to provide professional assistance for any medical needs. As an added layer of protection, ASA maintains a $10,000,000 general liability policy through our parent company. All ASA programs are accompanied by a local on-site coordinator who is fluent in the local language and customs. This person will provide invaluable support to your faculty leader by ensuring that all logistical arrangements are provided as promised, any potential service problems are resolved and most importantly, all necessary duties are performed to ensure the safety and well being of your participants.

#3 - FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

Inclusive pricing and guaranteed exchange rates. No budget surprises.

By combining the buying power of hundreds of study programs as well as that of the Intrax Cultural Exchange family of companies, ASA offers your participants an affordable, yet content-rich international study program. All ASA programs are created to meet the price you need to deliver to your students. Our program price will include flights, ground transportation, housing, local assistance, special program elements, classroom space, entrance fees, most meals, and any other item necessary to provide a quality academic and cultural experience for your participants. We also include all taxes and service fees so there are no hidden charges. Program costs for faculty leaders are generally included in the student program price, subject to school policy.

#4 - THE ABILITY TO MOVE FORWARD

Our unique Cancellation Fee Waiver.

We live in uncertain times, but the interest in international education and experiences abroad has never been greater. These experiences require preparation and planning, usually months in advance. Traditional methods of planning short-term, faculty-led programs require risking large deposits or payments should a participant cancel or the entire group choose not to travel. ASA offers a Cancellation Fee Waiver, which allows your participants to cancel up to three business days prior to departure and receive a full refund. We also offer your institution a number of flexible options for full group changes or cancellation.
